The Great Belgian is Sometimes Called the Caruso of the Violin-Will Appear in Slater Hall This Evening.

his last American tour, and at that time Norwich had the good fortune to seegre him for a recital. During the time that has elapsed since his former visit the great Belgian has won rec-corded Ysaye:

"The programme was in five numbers, four for the violin and one for the plano, and it was arranged to bring out the many-sided art of the great player. It opened with the rendition of Beethoven's Kreutzer Sonata, which opening a many state of the programme was in five numbers of appropriations reported favorably on a resolution appropriating $2,000 for the maintenance of the bridge over the Niantic river, between the towns of Waterford and East Lyme, for the ensuing two years. The opening occupied 35 minutes. The opening movement brought out the great pow-er of the violinist and his fine tech-nique, while the second movement showed the wonderful melody, stately, pure and sweet. In this movement there was beautiful embellishment to the melody by both Ysaye and the planist, and repeated change from lety to seriousness. The final number, Ballade at Polo-naise, by Vieuxtemps, opened with a quiet, graceful melody that rose and fell in passionate pleading and finally dashed into a brilliance of scintillating melody, rushing to a climax that literally brought the audience to its feet. Yeave was obliged to bow appreciation of the royal reception accorded his art after each number. His fellow artist was brought out to share the ovation, and time after time did the enthusiasm of the people burst out."

Following is the programme that he will render this evening:

Kreutzer Sonata op. 47.... Beethoven

Tickets for the Ysaye recital are now on sale at the stors of George A. Davis, where they will remain up to 5 o'clock this afternoon. After that they can be obtained at the hall before the recital begins. Admission $2, all seats

The concert will begin at 8 o'clock sharp and the audience is requested to be prompt in taking their seats for the reason that no one will be admit-ted to the hall during the playing of the Kreutzer Sonata, Beethoven's great work in which Ysave is said to excel first number on the programme, and all can do so by simply being in their

BREED THEATRE.

Tamandra, the Gypsy, Lubin Two Reel All-Star Feature Today.

There is a big two-reel feature at the Breed today entitled Tamandra, the Gypsy, which is a remarkable story of heart interest, dealing with gypsy life. It is also a powerful production being the product of an all-star cast, in which all the favorites appear. It tells of a young impetuous lad who gives his heart to a young gypsy girl and they were wedded. Because of this he is turned adrift by his family and the pair become penniless. family and the pair become penniless She returns to her tribe, and to prevent her husband from following her, causes the notice of her death to be published. How the romance is com-pleted must be seen to be appreciated, but it is sufficient to say there is not a dull moment in this feature, and the photography is superbly artistic and brilliant.

brilliant.

The Biograph story, A Welcome Intruder, is another strong bidder for supremacy and tells how an act intended for vengeance proved a blessing. Dick, the Dead Shot, Vitagraph; Tea and Toast, Edison, and The Long and Short of It, comedy, complete the bill.

POETRY

THE ALTAR. Neath the gardens of the emperors Unnoticed you may pass
A little altar nestling
In the poppies and the grass.
No gorgeous columns flank it.
Where priest or vestal trod.
Only the carven words that sing
"To the Unknown God."

The haughty practor scanned it
With humble, thoughtful air;
The base-born slave espical it
With sullen, frightened stare;
The Roman matron touched it
And went upon her way;
The gladiator saw it
And paused a while to pray,
Even the passing Chesar
Bowed the imperial head,
With faltering eyes that swept the skies
In reverent fear and dread.

In reverent fear and dread. The aching heavens domed it The aching heavens domed is
With royal lapis vive:
The soft Campania's whisper
Brought the sunshine and the dewy
The candles of the firmament
Bent down their brightest rays,
Where, midst their pagan Pantheon,
A people paused to gaze.

MOTHER EARTH.

Onward in unresting round.
Yielding to the Sun-god's might,
Knowing neither goal nor bound.
Day by day and night by night.

Mother Earth her law fulfills, Caroling through the vast inane, Bearing human love and lile, Life and death and boon and bane.

Yet we know our mother's ways, Know her moods benign or coul, And that she her Lord obeys, As she did obey of old.

Long ere she our race could bear, When but monstrous births she knew, And that onward she must fare, Yielding still obedience true,

When our race hath swarmed and passed,
When she can no more bring forth,
Rolling blindly, 'mid the vast,
Withered, lifeless, nothing worth, PHI at length-so say the seers
